Poetry and Politics of Liberation

IDSEM-UG 1866, Gallatin School of Individualized Study, NYU
Interdisciplinary Seminar, Spring 2016

Professor Linn Cary Mehta
English and Comparative Literature, Columbia U.
Course will begin promptly M/W 3:30- 4:45 p.m.
Classroom: Waverly #431
email: Lcarymehta@gmail.com
(or lcm8@nyu.edu)

Office: 1 Washington Place #603
Fax: (212) 472-7220
Office hours will be M 1-3 and W 2-3 p.m. and by appointment. I am also available to meet after class.

COURSE DESCRIPTION
The course begins with poets whose work is caught up in the struggle for independence from colonialism and other forms of oppression and moves on to the formation of post-colonial literatures. Poets writing from the colonies and former colonies of Europe in the first half of the 20th century share the challenges of defining national and racial identities, addressing problems of place and displacement, and exploring decolonization and freedom from linguistic and political oppression. We will read, among others, the Bengali poet Rabindranath Tagore; English-language poets including W.B. Yeats, William Carlos Williams, and Derek Walcott; the two leading poets of négritude, Aimé Césaire and Léopold Senghor, in relation to movements in Caribbean, African, and American literature including the Harlem Renaissance (Claude McKay, Langston Hughes, Nicolas Guillén); and Latin American poets including Gabriela Mistral, Pablo Neruda, and Octavio Paz. We will also make room for poets that reflect each student’s background, since each country has passed through a period of literary self-definition or redefinition in the course of the 20th century. The course will evolve a framework within which to address the comparative and interdisciplinary issues raised by the poetry. Though class discussions will be in English, students are encouraged to suggest poets from other traditions they may be familiar with and, to the greatest extent possible, to read the poetry in the original language. Please email lcm8@nyu.edu for further information.

COURSE OBJECTIVES
• Use interdisciplinary research to ground literary works in their political and historical contexts
• Analyze and contextualize the content and structure of literary works through close reading
• Translate critical reading into elegant and persuasive expository writing
• Deepen interdisciplinary perspectives through class presentations and discussion

COURSE REQUIREMENTS
One five-seven page paper due Week 7 (20%); one oral report (20%); one fifteen-twenty page paper due the last week of classes, the topic to be selected in consultation with the instructor (40%). Regular attendance and committed participation (20%).
SYLLABUS

Week 1: Introduction (January 25-27)

1.1 Post-nativist poetics; the poetic creation of a native identity in Ireland, India, West Africa, the Caribbean, Latin America, and North America.

1.2 Selections from "Michael Robartes and the Dancer" (1921): "Easter 1916"; "The Second Coming"

Week 2: William Butler Yeats and independent Ireland (1921) (February 1-3)

Contexts for poetry and decolonization: "Yeats and Decolonization" in Edward Said, Culture and Imperialism (220-238); Benedict Anderson, Imagined Communities.

2.2 Read Brian Friel, Translations

Presentation on Brian Friel’s Translations, Yeats, and Irish Independence

Week 3: Rabindranath Tagore and the Bengali language movement (February 8-10)

3.1 Introduction to Gitanjali by W.B. Yeats;

"Nationalism" in A Tagore Reader (181-204)

3.2 Presentation on Language and Indian Nationalism (Tagore and Bharati); read The Home and the World, Preface/Intro and Ch. 1-5 (1-104).

Week 4: Rabindranath Tagore: The Home and the World (February 15-17)

4.1 NO CLASS: President’s weekend.

4.2 Novels in relation to poetry; read The Home and the World Ch. 6-12 (104-204) and Selected Poems (Penguin, 1987; tr. W. Radice), especially "Africa" (102-3), "Leaving Home" (108-9), "New Birth" (111-112), "Recovery" (121-3), "On my Birthday" (124-5).

Week 5: Pakistan and South Africa (February 24-26)
5.1 Muhammed Iqbal (1877-1938), Tulip in the Desert (scanned)
Faiz Ahmed Faiz (1911-1984), The Rebel’s Silhouette: Selected Poems
Presentation on Gandhi, Iqbal, Faiz, and the Emergence of Pakistan

5.2 Presentation on Mandela, Poetry and the End of Apartheid

Possible special speakers: Souleymane Bachir Diagne, author of Bergson postcolonial. L’élan vital dans la pensée de Senghor et de Mohamed Iqbal, Paris, Editions du CNRS, 2011 or Mamadou Diouf (Columbia); sd2456@columbia.edu in 522 Philosophy Hall; (212) 854-3907.

Week 6: Léopold Sédar Senghor and negritude (February 29-March 2)

6.1 Introduction to Anthologie de la nouvelle poésie nègre et malgache de langue française (1948) by Jean-Paul Sartre, available in an English translation entitled "Black Orpheus."
Presentation on West Africa and Senegal.

6.2 The Collected Poetry (Charlottesville, Va.: University Press of Virginia, 1991), especially "In Memoriam" (3), "Letter to a Poet" (5), "Black Woman" (8), "Snow in Paris" (12), "Blues" (14), "To the Music of Koras and Balaphon" (17-24) from Chants d'ombre (1945) and selected elegies ("Elegy for Martin Luther King" and "Elegy of Carthage", pages 211-223).

Week 7: Aimé Césaire, Martinique, and Paris in the 1930s (March 7-9)

7.1 "Cahier d'un retour à mon pays natal" by Aimé Césaire.
Presentation on Césaire, Fanon, and the politics of the French Caribbean

SPRING BREAK (March 11-20)

Week 8: Claude McKay and the english-speaking Caribbean; the influence of the Harlem Renaissance on negritude (March 21-23)

8.1 Selected poems from Claude McKay; Presentation on Claude McKay and the English-speaking Caribbean

Theory: Brathwaite, Lamming, Harris
8.2 Langston Hughes and the Harlem Renaissance; Harlem Shadows.

Week 9: Nicolás Guillén and afro-cubanismo (March 28-30)

9.2 Presentation on Nicolás Guillén and afro-cubanismo; “El gran zoo”; Theory: Retamar

Week 10: Darwish and Palestine; Gabriela Mistral's Poema de Chile; women poets in Latin America and other post-colonial settings (April 4-6)

10.1 Speaker: Sinon Antoon on Darwish

10.2 Readings from Selected Poems of Gabriela Mistral (translated and edited by Doris Dana, Baltimore: Johns Hopkins Press, 1971.) Presentation on Gabriela Mistral (1889-1957) and women poets in Latin America and other post-colonial settings.

Week 11: Pablo Neruda and the Spanish Civil War; return to Chile and the writing of the Canto general (April 11-13)

11.2 Presentation on Neruda and Chilean history; Canto General

Week 12: Octavio Paz and Mexico; uses of mythology (April 18-20)

12.1 "Piedra de sol" in Configurations (New York: New Directions, 1971, 2-38);

12.2 Presentation on Paz in relation to Mexican history and politics

13.1 Paterson and In the American Grain; Reconsider the intersection of the European avant-garde in the '20s with the evolving "Americanism" also apparent in Eliot and Pound.
13.2  Howl (Allen Ginsberg, 1926-1997); Presentation on the Beat Poets

Week 14: Derek Walcott and the Caribbean; Theory and comparative analysis (May 2-4)

14.1  Walcott, Omeros

14.2  Presentation on Walcott, Brathwaite, and the contemporary Caribbean.

Week 15: Final Class and Final Papers due (May 9-11)

Extracts from the following are available through the course website:

Europe

Hannah Arendt, Imperialism
Benedict Anderson, Imagined Communities
Elizabeth Cullingford, Yeats, Ireland and Fascism

Asia

Ahmad, Aijaz, In Theory
Bhabha, Homi K. Nation and Narration

Africa

Chinua Achebe, Hopes and Impediments
Ngugi wa Thiong'o, Decolonizing the Mind

Latin America and the Caribbean

Arnold, A. James, Modernism and Negritude
Edward Kamau Brathwaite, History of the Voice
Frantz Fanon, Black Skin, White Masks
Fernández Retamar, Roberto, Caliban
C.L.R. James, The Black Jacobins
Rodó, Jose Enrique, Ariel

North America

Baker, Houston, Modernism and the Harlem Renaissance
Gates, Henry Louis, Jr. "Race", Writing and Difference
LaCapra, Dominick, The Bounds of Race
Gayatri Chakravorty Spivak, In Other Worlds
Said, Edward, Culture and Imperialism (Knopf, 1993)
I have ordered the following books (in bold) and will make sure that copies of all these texts are available under Resources on NYU Classes or on college reserve:

W.B. Yeats, Collected Poems (MacMillan, 1956)
Rabindranath Tagore, Selected Poems (Penguin, 1987)

  Gitanjali (Introduction by W.B. Yeats, 1913)

  The Home and the World (Penguin Classics, 2005)

L.S. Senghor, The Collected Poetry (Caraf Books, 1991)

Aimé Césaire, The Collected Poetry (U. of California Press, 1983)

  Cahier d'un retour à mon pays natal is also available in separate editions by Présence Africaine (1983) and Penguin (1969)

Nicolas Guillén, The Great Zoo and Other Poems (English and Spanish Edition, 1973)

  Summa poética (Ediciones Cátedra, 1980)

Claude McKay, Selected Poems (1953), and *Banjo_._

Gabriela Mistral, Selected Poems (tr. Langston Hughes)

  Selected Poems of Gabriela Mistral (University of New Mexico Press, 2011)

Pablo Neruda, Canto General (U. of California Press, 1991)

  The Heights of Macchu Picchu is also available separately from Farrar, Straus & Giroux (1966; sixteenth printing, 1990.)

Octavio Paz, Configurations (New York: New Directions, 1971)

  Sunstone/Piedra De Sol (New Directions PB, 1991)

William Carlos Williams, Paterson and In the American Grain (New York: New Directions)

Allen Ginsberg, Howl and Other Poems (City Lights Pocket Poets, No. 4, 2001)

Derek Walcott, Omeros (FSG 1990) and Collected Poems, 1948-1984 (FSG 1986)

COURSE REQUIREMENTS:

Grading/Requirements
Attendance/Participation throughout (including online responses) 20%
Presentation (20%)
First Essay: 5-7 pages due Week 7 (20%)
Final Essay: 15-20 pages due the last week of classes (40%)

Attendance/Participation
Regular attendance, punctuality, and engagement with the readings are keys to being an active participant. As such I will expect you to be present and on time at each of our class sessions. For your benefit and mine, I will take attendance at the beginning of each class. Should you need to miss a session, let me know ahead of class by email, as I will not consider retroactive explanations and each unexcused absence will incur a two point reduction from your final grade (with a maximum of five). After five unexcused absences, you will receive an “F” for participation/attendance. More importantly, though, I will expect you to come to class prepared, which of course means that you have read/seen/heard the work assigned in advance of each class, and are ready to participate in discussions about the materials. Please take this course only if you think you will enjoy a reading load including a lot of poetry, theory, and occasionally a novel.

Presentations
You will be responsible for researching and preparing material on the history and politics of a particular country, region, and/or period in relation to one or more of the authors we are reading. Your research will result in a 20 minute presentation in class by a website with links and commentary that you will assemble. The presentation, together with your finished website with commentary and analysis, will account for 20% of your grade.

Responses (by text)
I will ask each of you to write not weekly responses, but responses to selected poets, relating them to the historical, political, and economic context addressed in the presentations. The responses should be about a page (one or two paragraphs) in length. They can take the form of questions and analysis of single poems or collections of poems, or responses to questions raised by other students. You should aim to make specific interdisciplinary connections between each work and its context. These should be posted on the discussion board while we are reading the work or, at the latest, within a week of finishing the work. These required responses will not be graded separately but will become a part of your overall participation grade.

Essays #1 and 2
The first essay is an analysis of the work of a single author. It can take off from one of your responses or a part of presentation that particularly interests you. This essay should be 5-7 pages in length (double spaced, 1 inch margins, 12 point font, Times New Roman or comparable font) and is due in Week 7 (March 9).

You should email me (Lcarymehta@gmail.com) your essay by Wednesday, March 9th. You may also drop off your essays in the mailbox outside my office (1 Washington Place, Rm. 603) if you prefer.
After spring break, I will ask you to submit a topic to me for your final paper, which should include more in-depth research on a particular topic or set of connections between one or more poets and novelists and their context. I would like to see a basic outline or prospectus for your final essay before you begin to write it. The final essay should be 15-20 pages long and is due a day after the final class; if you wish, you may hand in a draft or part of a draft for feedback during the last two weeks of classes, and I will give you comments promptly.

Extra Credit
Over the course of the semester, the instructor may make extra credit opportunities available to students. These may include attending relevant talks, performances, films, expositions, etc, followed by brief 1-2 page reaction essays submitted on the Discussion Board tab of the course website. Students are also encouraged to recommend any events that strike them as relevant to the course. Each extra credit opportunity will add one point to a student’s final grade, with no more than three points possible.

Late Submissions/Incompletes
Students can ask for extensions and will receive them at the instructor’s discretion, though any late submission will incur a half grade drop unless the delay results from documented medical reasons or family emergencies. Only requests made in advance of the deadline will be considered. Assignments submitted late without previously alerting the instructor will not be graded. The last day to submit all your work is 17 December. If you anticipate being unable to meet this deadline, you should contact the instructor immediately and request to receive an Incomplete, which will be granted at the instructor’s discretion and only with a previously approved plan to complete outstanding work.

Academic Integrity
As a Gallatin student you belong to an interdisciplinary community of artists and scholars who value honest and open intellectual inquiry. This relationship depends on mutual respect, responsibility, and integrity. Failure to uphold these values will be subject to severe sanction, which may include dismissal from the University. Examples of behaviors that compromise the academic integrity of the Gallatin School include plagiarism, illicit collaboration, doubling or recycling coursework, and cheating. Please consult the Gallatin Bulletin or Gallatin website for a full description of the academic integrity policy: (www.gallatin.nyu.edu/academics/policies/policy/integrity.html)